

Tribeca Citizen

Move Over, Brushstroke

4/10/12 • Restaurant/Bar News

Move over, Brushstroke, Rosanjin, Sushi Azabu, and Nobu (and the upcoming Sushi of Gari): Tribeca is getting another destination Japanese restaurant. After hearing a rumor that Masa—chef Masa Takayama's

Courtesy Masa

$450-prix-fixe-sushi-temple in the Time Warner mall—is opening in Tribeca, I called and asked. I was told that it's true, but I couldn't get an exact location; they're aiming for November. I asked if it would be a Masa/Bar Masa arrangement (Bar Masa is à la carte), and the answer was no, that it'd be "something completely different," and called Tetsu (which means "iron" and is also a first name).

Obviously, if you know where then you should really be emailing me at tribecacitizen@gmail.com instead of reading these last few words.

P.S. You really should sign up for the Tribeca Citizen email newsletter—it comes out twice a week, and you can unsubscribe at any time. Just look for "Subscribe to the email newsletter" in the upper right corner, and enter your email address.